Case No. 14-CR-3571-LAB

TIME: 9:00 a.m.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANT'S MOTION

18 I.

19 INTRODUCTION

20 The Court should dismiss the information against Mr. Herrera-Hernandez because he 21 has never been validly ordered removed from the United States. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez's 22 two expedited removals, and any subsequent reinstatements, cannot be used to support a 23 section 1326 conviction. On June 24, 2008 and February 23, 2009, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez
24 appeared before immigration officers for expedited removal proceedings. On each occasion,
25 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez attempted to tell the officers that he did not speak or understand 26 Spanish and that the only language he understood was Mixteco.

27 //

1 On each occasion, the officer failed to provide Mr. Herrera-Hernandez with a Mixteco
2 interpreter. On each occasion, the officer failed to inform Mr. Herrera-Hernandez that he 3 was in formal removal proceedings and failed to read the Record of Sworn Statement to Mr.
4 Herrera-Hernandez. The officers told Mr. Herrera-Hernandez where to sign the forms,
5 though he did not understand what he was signing. These actions violated Mr. Herrera-
6 Hernandez's due process rights to receive notice of and respond to the allegations against 7 him.

8 In each case, he was prejudiced by these violations. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was 9 statutorily eligible to withdraw his application for admission, a form of relief from removal.
10 Additionally, he was a good candidate for this relief, as he had not engaged in deliberate or 11 obvious fraud to gain entry into the United States, he had no prior orders of removal, and no
12 criminal history. He had more than a plausible chance of convincing the officers to let him 13 depart after first withdrawing his application for removal.

14 Because both removals were infected by due process violations resulting in prejudice,
15 neither of these removals, nor their reinstatements, can form the predicate of an illegal re-
16 entry prosecution. The Court should dismiss the information.

17 II.

18 STATEMENT OF FACTS

19 A. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez's Background

20 Paulino Herrera-Hernandez is 42 years old. See Exhibit A, Declaration of 21 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez. He was born in Guerrero, Mexico and attended school only through 22 the first grade. Id. at ¶2-3. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez's wife and seven children, between the 23 ages of 1 and 16, live in Guerrero. Id. at ¶8. He is the primary source of financial support
24 for his family. Id. at ¶9. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez has worked in the fields his entire life, 25 picking corn and beans, and earns an average of $26 every 3 months. Id. at ¶7.

1 The only language that Mr. Herrera-Hernandez speaks and understands
2 fully is Mixteco. Id. at ¶4. He can speak and understand very little Spanish. Id. at ¶5.
3 His limited knowledge of the Spanish language is what he learned from hearing others speak
4 it while working in the tomato fields from 2005 to 2008. Id. at ¶6.

5 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was coming to the United States with the hopes of finding 6 more stable and higher paying employment to support his family. Id. at ¶10. At the time of 7 his removals in 2008 and 2009, he had never been convicted of a crime. Id. at ¶11.

8 B. The June 24, 2008 Expedited Removal

9 On June 24, 2008, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was apprehended for “eluding inspection”
10 by attempting to enter the United States through the primary lane at the San Ysidro Port of 11 Entry. He was processed at the San Ysidro Port of Entry. He was served with a Notice and 12 Order of Expedited Removal. See Exhibit B. The Notice charged him with being removable 13 for the following reasons:

- 14 1) On or about June 24, 2008, you attempted to elude inspection to enter the United 15 States, via the San Ysidro, California Port of Entry.
16 2) You are a citizen and national of Mexico.
17 3) You have no legal right to enter, pass through, or remain in the United States.
18 4) You are not in possession of a valid entry document as required by the Act.

19 Id.

20 At the Port of Entry, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez primarily interacted with CBP Officer
21 Rodrigo Lopez, who processed the immigration paperwork related to the expedited removal.
22 Id. As reflected in the Record of Sworn Statement, Officer Lopez spoke to Mr. Herrera-23 Hernandez in Spanish.

Before: RODRIGO LOPEZ	(Name and Title)	CBP OFFICER
In the SPANISH	language. Interpreter RODRIGO LOPEZ	Employed by CBP

27 See Exhibit C, 2008 Record of Sworn Statement. In the limited Spanish that he knows, 28 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez explained to Officer Lopez that he did not understand Spanish and

1 that he needed a Mixteco interpreter. See Exhibit A at ¶15.¹ Despite his request, a Mixteco
2 interpreter was never provided. Id. at ¶16. Officer Lopez did not tell Mr. Herrera-Hernandez
3 he was in formal removal proceedings. Id. at ¶17. He did not tell Mr. Herrera-Hernandez
4 that he could call a lawyer. Id. at ¶18. At the end of the interview, Officer Lopez placed 5 forms in front of Mr. Herrera-Hernandez and told him where to initial and sign them. Id. at 6 ¶20. He did not read the forms to Mr. Herrera-Hernandez; if he did, it was not in a language
7 that Mr. Herrera-Hernandez understood. Id. at ¶19. Officer Lopez did not tell Mr. Herrera-8 Hernandez that he had any options other than to sign the paperwork. Id. at ¶22.
9 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez did not understand what he was signing. Id. at ¶21.

10 Subsequent to the execution of the paperwork, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was ordered 11 removed. See Exhibit B.

12 C. The February 23, 2009 Expedited Removal

13 On February 22, 2009, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was arrested by a Border Patrol Agent
14 in the hills approximately two miles east of the Stay Mesa Port of Entry and four miles north
15 of the border. He was processed at the Chula Vista Border Patrol Station. He was served
16 with a Notice and Order of Expedited Removal. See Exhibit D. The Notice charged him
17 with being removable because he is “an immigrant not in possession of a valid unexpired
18 immigrant visa, reentry permit, border crossing card, or other valid entry document required
19 by the Immigration and Nationality Act. You are a citizen and national of Mexico, and on 20 February 21, 2009, you illegally entered the United States at/near Stay Mesa, California, and 21 you were not inspected by an Immigration Officer.” Id.

22 At the Border Patrol station, Border Patrol Agent Rigoberto Ceja-Hand processed the 23 immigration paperwork related to the expedited removal. Id. The Record of Sworn 24 Statement does not make clear what language was used when informing Mr. Herrera-25 Hernandez of his rights and the removal proceeding. See Exhibit E. The Record of Sworn

27 ¹The statement Mr. Herrera-Hernandez made, “No entiende Espanol. Yo quiero
28 Mixteco,” roughly translates to “I do not understand Spanish. I want Mixteco.”

Statement does make clear that an interpreter was not used.

Before: RIGOBERTO CEJA-HUANTE	BORDER PATROL AGENT
(Name and Title)
In the _____ language. Interpreter NONE USED	Employed by _____

Id. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez recalls being spoken to in both English and Spanish. See Exhibit A at ¶26. Again, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez explained to the agent that he did not understand and requested a Mixteco interpreter, but none was provided. Id. at ¶27-28. Again, the agent did not tell Mr. Herrera-Hernandez that he could have an attorney. Id. at ¶30. The agent finished the interview and placed several sheets of paper before Mr. Herrera-Hernandez and instructed him to sign them. Id. at ¶32. The agent did not read the papers to Mr. Herrera-Hernandez, or if he did, it was not in a language that Mr. Herrera-Hernandez understood. Id. at ¶31. As a result, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez did not understand what he was signing. Id. at ¶33.

The agent did not inform Mr. Herrera-Hernandez of his options other than signing the paperwork. Id. at ¶34. Soon after this interview, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was again ordered removed from the United States. See Exhibit D.

D. The May 17, 2011 Reinstatement

On May 16, 2011, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was convicted and sentenced for violating 8 U.S.C. §1326 for being a deported alien found in the United States. He received a sentence of 5 years of probation. According to discovery materials, the February 23, 2009 expedited removal order was reinstated on May 17, 2011.

E. Subsequent Events & Procedural History

On November 15, 2014, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was arrested in the brush about five miles east of the Stay Mesa Port of Entry and about eight miles north of the border. The government alleges that he is a citizen of Mexico with no documents authorizing his presence in the United States.

1 On December 11, 2014, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez waived indictment and pleaded not 2 guilty to a one-count information charging him with being a removed alien found in the 3 United States in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1326(a) and (b).

4 These motions follow.

5 III.

6 SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

7 This case is directly controlled by a recent Ninth Circuit case, United States v.
8 Rayons-Vac., 771 F.3d 1195 (9th Cir. 2014). As in that case, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez's due 9 process rights were violated when the officers failed to provide interpreter assistance to 10 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez. The officers also failed to read the Record of Sworn Statement to 11 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez and instructed him to sign it without understanding what it said.
12 This error violated Mr. Herrera-Hernandez's due process rights to receive notice of and have 13 the opportunity to respond to the allegations against him.

14 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was prejudiced because he was statutorily eligible for the form
15 of relief from removal known as withdrawal of application. Additionally, under Rayons-Vac., 16 a defendant need only make a showing that a grant of relief was "plausible" according to 17 both enumerated and unenumerated factors. Because Mr. Herrera-Hernandez's candidacy
18 for withdrawal of application was just as strong as the defendant's in Rayons-Vac., he can 19 satisfy the prejudice requirement.

20 IV.

21 ARGUMENT

22 A. The Requirements of a Motion to Dismiss under § 1326(d).

23 In order to serve as an element of a criminal offense, an order of removal must 24 comport with Due Process. United States v. Mendoza-Lopez, 481 U.S. 828, 837-38 (1987).
25 A defendant in a prosecution for illegal re-entry may collaterally attack the prior order of 26 removal, and the removal may not serve as the basis of a criminal conviction, if the 27 defendant can show (1) that he exhausted his administrative remedies, (2) that he was

1 deprived of judicial review, and (3) that his removal order was fundamentally unfair.
2 8 U.S.C. § 1326(d); United States v. Ubaldo-Figueroa, 364 F.3d 1042, 1048 (9th Cir. 2004).²

3 A defendant is excused from having to demonstrate exhaustion of remedies and 4 deprivation of judicial review if he can show that his purported waiver of his right to appeal
5 was not considered and intelligent. See United States v. Muro-Inclan, 249 F.3d 1180, 1183-
6 1184 (9th Cir. 2001); United States v. Lopez-Vasquez, 1 F.3d 751, 753-754 (9th Cir. 1993)
7 (en banc). An underlying removal order is “fundamentally unfair” if: “(1) [a defendant’s] due 8 process rights were violated by defects in his underlying deportation proceeding, and (2) he 9 suffered prejudice as a result of the defects.” United States v. Zarate-Martinez, 133 F.3d
10 1194, 1197 (9th Cir. 1998).

11 B. 1326(d) Motions and Expedited Removals: United States v. Rayons-Vac.

12 The analysis for a 1326(d) motion in the expedited removal context follows the same 13 general path as with a removal after a hearing before an immigration judge: the movant must 14 show a due process violation and prejudice. However, the Ninth Circuit has recently issued 15 a major published opinion clarifying exactly how those two concepts apply to the unique 16 context of an expedited removal.

17 1. Due process in an expedited removal

18 In United States v. Rayons-Vac, the defendant explained that the immigration officer
19 “neither read to him nor permitted him to review the information in the sworn statement.”
20 771 F.3d at 1205. The Ninth Circuit concluded that this failure to permit the defendant to 21 review the record of sworn statement was “in contravention of Rayons-Vac.’s due process 22 rights.” Id. The Ninth Circuit held that this due process right was one both established by 23 regulation and protected by the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment. See id.

26
27 ²Although 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)(D) purports to forbid collateral attacks of expedited
28 removal orders, the Ninth Circuit has held this portion of the statute unconstitutional. See
United States v. Barajas-Alvarado, 655 F.3d 1077, 1087 (9th Cir. 2011).

1 The regulation that governs expedited removals requires officers to read (or have the 2 alien read) the statements on Form I-867B before signing them. See 8 C.F.R.
3 § 235.3(b)(2)(I). Moreover, the regulation states that “[i]nterpretive assistance shall be used
4 if necessary to communicate with the alien.” Id. (emphasis added). Therefore, requiring the 5 defendant to sign the statement without having first read it deprived him of an “opportunity 6 to respond” as required by due process. Id. at 1204.

7 2. Plausibility of relief in an expedited removal.

8 After concluding that the defendant had suffered a violation of his due process rights, 9 the Ninth Circuit turned to the issue of prejudice to determine whether Rayons-Vac. had had 10 “plausible grounds for relief from the removal order.” Id. at 1206 (citation and internal 11 quotation marks omitted). In the expedited removal context, the primary form of available
12 relief is the ability to withdraw an application for admission and to depart the United States
13 without a removal order. Id.; see also 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(4) (permitting withdrawal of 14 application); 8 C.F.R. § 1235.4 (implementing statute). The Ninth Circuit explained that a 15 plausibility analysis has two steps: (1) identifying the factors relevant to the agency’s 16 exercise of discretion for the relief being sought, and (2) determining, in light of those 17 factors, whether it was plausible that the agency official considering the defendant’s case
18 could have granted relief. Id. (citing United States v. Rojas-Pedroza, 716 F.3d 1253, 1263
19 (9th Cir. 2013)).

20 Following its precedent, the Ninth Circuit looked to the Inspector’s Field Manual to 21 determine whether the defendant’s relief was plausible. Id. at 1207. The Court stated:

22 The Inspector’s Field Manual provides for a highly individualized
23 determination and instructs officers to “consider all facts and circumstances 24 related to the case to determine whether permitting withdrawal would be in the 25 best interests of justice.” INS Inspector’s Field Manual §17.2(a) (2007), 26 available at Westlaw FIM-INSFMAN 17.2, 2007 WL 7710869; see also 27 Matter of Vargas-Molina, 13 I. & N. Dec. 651, 652-53 (BIA 1971). The 28 Manual also enumerates six factors relevant to the question of relief: “(1) the seriousness of the immigration violation; (2) previous findings of inadmissability against the alien; (3) intent on the part of the alien to violate the law; (4) ability to easily overcome the ground of inadmissability; (5) age or poor health of the alien; and (6) other humanitarian or public interest considerations.” [United States v.] Barajas-Alvarado, 655 F.3d [1077,] 1090 (citing INS Inspector’s Field Manual §17.2(a) (2001)). This list of

1 considerations is non-exhaustive. See INS Inspector’s Field Manual §17.2(a)
2 (2007) (specifying that relevant factors “are not limited to” the enumerated
3 considerations); see also Barajas-Alvarado, 655 F.3d at 1091 (evaluating the 4 weight due to unenumerated factors, taking into account the Manual’s failure
5 to identify the factors specifically). Finally, the Manual identifies germane 6 considerations, noting in particular that withdrawal should “ordinarily” not be 7 permitted “in situations where there is obvious, deliberate fraud on the part of 8 the applicant.” Id. (citing as an example of obvious fraud the use of 9 counterfeit documents).

10 Id. (brackets in citations added). The Court went on to emphasize that the defendant “need 11 not prove that relief was probable.” Id. (citing Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 556 12 (2007) for plausibility standard). “Certainly, he need not show that he definitely would have 13 received immigration relief. Instead, Rayons-Vac. need only establish ‘some evidentiary 14 basis on which relief could have been granted.’” Id. (quoting United States v. Reyes-Bonilla, 15 671 F.3d 1036, 1049-50 (9th Cir. 2012) (other quotation marks and citation omitted)).

16 3. Plausibility of relief in *Rayons-Vac.

17 Turning to “Rayons-Vac.’s unique characteristics,” id. at 1207-08, the Court first 18 noted that several factors cut against the defendant receiving relief. The defendant in that 19 case had at least six prior illegal re-entries. Id. at 1208. He had suffered a previous finding 20 of inadmissibility. Id. Neither his health nor his age helped his case. Id. The fact that he “had 21 no petitions for status pending . . . and was not officially married to a United States citizen”
22 did not help him show that he could easily overcome his inadmissibility. Id. In fact, five of 23 the six factors listed in the Manual cut against plausibility in his case. Id.

24 The Court found, however, that his “significant humanitarian considerations”
25 counseled in favor of relief. Id. His partner and their children, along with his mother, 26 siblings, and other family members, all lived in the United States. Id. Therefore, “the 27 humanitarian and public interest factors weigh[ed] significantly in Rayons-Vac.’s favor.” Id.
28 (citing United States v. Haro-Munoz, 552 Fed. App’x 689, 690 (9th Cir. 2014) for the proposition that there is a “compelling humanitarian interest in keeping families united”).

The Court also looked to factors outside the Manual. Id. at 1209. It found that Rayons-Vac.’s “misdemeanor criminal history” did not “have much bearing on the plausibility of relief.” Id. It also looked to documentary evidence he had provided that another individual

1 with no pending petitions, a prior conviction for a false statement to a federal officer, and a
2 prior exclusion order had been permitted to withdraw his application. Id. This evidence
3 showed that “relief under such circumstances was plausible.” Id. It also looked to statistics
4 Rayons-Vac. had provided indicating that a large percentage of aliens in expedited removal
5 proceedings are afforded relief. Id.

6 Concluding that Rayons-Vac. had shown “that he had some evidentiary basis for relief
7 from his 2011 removal order,” the Court reversed the district court’s denial of his 1326(d) 8 motion.

9 C. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez’s Case.

10 1. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez has exhausted administrative remedies and was 11 deprived of judicial review.

12 Because 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1) prohibits any review of the order of removal, Mr.
13 Herrera-Hernandez has established that he exhausted administrative remedies and that he 14 was deprived of judicial review. See Barajas-Alvarado, 655 F.3d at 1082 (“...the INA
15 precludes meaningful judicial review of the validity of the proceedings that result in an 16 expedited removal order.”); see also Rayons-Vac., 771 F.3d at 1202 (same).

17 2. The officers’ failure to provide interpretive assistance and to read 18 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez’s statements to him before he signed them were due process violations.

19 The due process violations in this case are much more egregious than those present
20 in Rayons-Vac. Just as in Rayons-Vac., the immigration officers here did not read the record
21 of sworn statements to Mr. Herrera-Hernandez before having him sign them. See Exhibit A
22 at ¶¶ 34-27; 49-52. These omissions constituted a violation of Mr. Herrera-Hernandez’s due 23 process right to respond to the allegations against him. Rayons-Vac., 771 F.3d at 1205.

24 Moreover, the due process violation in Mr. Herrera-Hernandez’s case is even more
25 fundamental than that present in Rayons-Vac. because of the lack of interpretive assistance
26 provided to Mr. Herrera-Hernandez, who only speaks Mixteco. The Ninth Circuit has held 27 that the right to procedural due process includes the right to effective translation. See Perez-
28 Lastor v. INS, 208 F.3d 773, 778 (9th Cir. 2000). In that case, the Ninth Circuit elaborated:

1 “It is long-settled that a competent translation is fundamental to a full and fair hearing. If
2 an alien does not speak English, deportation proceedings must be translated into a language
3 the alien understands.” Id. at 778 (citations omitted); see also Barajas-Alvarado, 655 F.3d
4 at 1088.

5 In Barajas-Alvarado, the Ninth Circuit recognized that “applicable procedures require
6 that the immigration official provide the alien with ‘[i]nterpretive assistance,’
7 §1235.3(b)(2)(I), and we have held that ‘due process requires that an applicant be given
8 competent translation services.’” Id. (citations omitted). In Barajas-Alvarado, the record 9 was ambiguous as to whether the defendant received the required assistance because some 10 portions of the documentation indicated that translation services were provided while others
11 did not. Id.

12 There is no such ambiguity here. None of the documentation indicates that Mixteco 13 interpretive services were provided to Mr. Herrera-Hernandez. The documentation, coupled 14 with Mr. Herrera-Hernandez’s declaration, establish that the proceedings took place in 15 Spanish and English despite Mr. Herrera-Hernandez’s request for a Mixteco interpreter.
16 Under Ninth Circuit precedent, this is a clear violation of due process.

17 3. Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was prejudiced by these due process violations.

18 Prejudice to Mr. Herrera-Hernandez may be established if he had a “plausible ground” 19 for relief from removal. United States v. Arce-Hernandez, 163 F.3d 559, 563 (9th Cir.
20 1999). He does not have to show that he “actually would have been granted relief.” Ubaldo-
21 Figuerroa, 364 F.3d at 1050. It is sufficient that the defendant show that he “could have”
22 been granted relief at his removal proceeding. United States v. Ortiz-Lopez, 385 F. 3d 1202,
23 1204 (9th Cir. 2004). Once the defendant makes a prima facie showing that he had a 24 plausible ground of relief, the burden shifts to the government to “demonstrate that the 25 procedural violation could not have changed the proceedings’ outcome.” United States
26 v. Gonzalez-Valerio, 342 F.3d 1051, 1054 (9th Cir. 2003) (emphasis added). Thus, 27 it is not enough for the government to show that it was unlikely that the defendant would

1 have been granted relief, since “even a petitioner with . . . possibly a weak case has a right
2 to a fair hearing.” Zolotukhin v. Gonzalez, 417 F.3d 1073, 1077 (9th Cir. 2005).

3 (a) The prejudice resulted from the due process violation.

4 In Rayons-Vac., the Ninth Circuit explained the link between the due process violation
5 and prejudice:

6 Finally, contrary to the government’s argument, the prejudice Rayons-Vac.
7 suffered resulted from the due process violation. As noted, it is 8 uncontroverted that no immigration officer explained the nature of the 9 removal proceedings to Rayons-Vac. or that he could be ordered removed 10 from the United States. His sworn statement further asserts that had he known he could withdraw his application, he would have asked to do so in order to preserve his ability to reenter the United States legally by avoiding the bar resulting from a removal order.

11 771 F. 3d at 1210 (emphasis added). Just as in Rayons-Vac., the prejudice here resulted 12 from the due process violation; specifically, the lack of interpretive services and the failure 13 to allow Mr. Herrera-Hernandez to read the Record of Sworn Statement prevented him from 14 understanding the allegations against him and prevented him from seeking to withdraw his 15 application. See, e.g., Chike v. INS, 948 F.2d 961, 962 (5th Cir. 1991) (holding that “(b)y
16 showing that he was denied the opportunity to be heard before the Board of Immigration
17 Appeal (when he did not receive notice of a briefing schedule and failed to file his brief, 18 Petitioner has shown substantial prejudice” and finding that “denial of the opportunity to be 19 heard is, in and of itself, substantial prejudice); see also Sewak v. INS, 900 F.2d 667, 670 n.7 20 (3d Cir. 1990) (rejecting harmless error doctrine where respondent was denied his 21 fundamental statutory right to receive notice of hearing).

22 (b) Mr. Herrera-Hernandez suffered prejudice because he was not 23 informed of withdrawal of application, despite his statutory eligibility.

24 The statute on withdrawal of application for admission reads: “An alien applying for 25 admission may, in the discretion of the Attorney General and at any time, be permitted to 26 withdraw the application for admission and depart immediately from the United States.”
27 8 U.S.C. §1225(a)(4). Although Mr. Herrera-Hernandez did not formally apply for 28 admission into the United States, he is considered to be an applicant for admission and was

1 statutorily eligible for withdrawal of application for admission. See Rayons-Vac., 771 F.3d
2 at 1206.

3 Both the Supreme Court's decision in United States v. Mendoza-Lopez, 481 U.S. 828
4 (1987) and the Ninth Circuit's subsequent en banc decision in United States v. Proa-Tovar, 5 975 F.2d 592 (9th Cir. 1992), establish that where defendants were statutorily eligible for 6 relief but were not advised of this fact, they suffered prejudice. See Mendoza-Lopez, 481
7 U.S. at 842 ("[S]ince the only relief for which [the defendants] would have been eligible was 8 not adequately explained to them, the deportation proceeding in which these events occurred
9 may not be used to support a criminal conviction"); Pro-Tovar, 975 F.3d at 595 (finding that 10 the defendants in Mendoza-Lopez "were prejudiced") (emphasis in original). However,
11 several years after Proa-Tovar, a Ninth Circuit panel spontaneously began to consider a 12 defendant's years of residence, family ties, and other equitable factors to conclude whether 13 he was, in fact, prejudiced by the underlying proceedings, with no authority or explanation
14 for this additional inquiry. See United States v. Jimenez-Marmolejo, 104 F.3d 1083, 1086
15 (9th Cir. 1996). Soon after, two other Ninth Circuit decisions adopted the language and 16 requirements of Jimenez-Marmolejo. See United States v. Arce-Hernandez, 163 F.3d 559,
17 563 (9th Cir. 1998); Arrieta, 224 F.3d at 1082-83. Consequently, every published Ninth 18 Circuit decision that has required a showing of equities to demonstrate prejudice since that 19 time has relied on one of these three cases—even though none of the three ever explained 20 the underlying rationale for this dramatic expansion of the prejudice prong.

21 The problem with Jimenez-Marmolejo and its progeny is that it grafted on an entirely 22 new prejudice requirement that directly conflicts with Mendoza-Lopez. Like Jimenez-
23 Marmolejo, the Mendoza-Lopez defendants were eligible for discretionary relief and had not 24 been so advised. But Mendoza-Lopez did not respond to this scenario by delving into factual 25 questions of family ties, length of residence, hardship, and employment history and 26 comparing these to the equities of others who had been granted similar forms of relief.
27 Rather, Mendoza-Lopez flatly held that "the deportation proceeding ... may not be used to 28 support a criminal conviction." Mendoza-Lopez, 481 U.S. at 842 (emphasis added). Nor did

1 the Supreme Court remand for a court below to conduct an inquiry into these equities—it
2 simply upheld the circuit court's decision that the defendant had established prejudice. Id.
3 And since neither Mendoza-Lopez nor Proa-Tovar have ever been overturned, the § 1326(d)
4 prejudice standard currently employed by the Ninth Circuit (requiring an equities analysis
5 and a showing of "plausibility") violates both Supreme Court and en banc precedent.

6 The error of Jimenez-Marmolejo and its progeny becomes even more apparent when 7 compared to prejudice findings in immigration cases. To find that an immigrant in removal
8 proceedings has shown prejudice, the Ninth Circuit considers whether "the outcome of the 9 proceeding may have been affected by the alleged violation." Colmenar v. I.N.S., 210 F.3d
10 967, 971 (9th Cir. 2000) (emphasis added). Recently the Ninth Circuit—without examining 11 the immigrant's underlying equities in support of relief—found that this standard had been 12 met where the alien's attorney failed to submit an application for statutorily-available relief.
13 See Correa-Rivera v. Holder, 706 F.3d 1128, 1133-34 (9th Cir. 2013). There is no logical 14 reason that criminal cases under § 1326(d)(3) should be treated any differently. Because the 15 Ninth Circuit's current § 1326(d)(3) prejudice standard cannot be reconciled with Supreme 16 Court, en banc, or immigration case law, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez can show prejudice simply 17 through his demonstration of statutory eligibility for withdrawal of application, rather than 18 an examination of his underlying equities.

19 In this case, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez was statutorily eligible for withdrawal of 20 application at his 2008 and 2009 expedited removal proceedings. However, he was never 21 adequately advised of his eligibility and never given a meaningful opportunity to apply for 22 it. Thus, like the defendants in Mendoza-Lopez, he suffered prejudice.

23 © Mr. Herrera-Hernandez had a plausible case for withdrawal of 24 application under Rayons-Vac.

25 In Rayons-Vac., the Ninth Circuit looked to the factors listed in the Inspector's Field
26 Manual to determine whether the defendant had a plausible case for withdrawal of 27 application. The Court started off by emphasizing ("first and foremost") the absence of 28 obvious or deliberate fraud, a factor that ordinarily militates against withdrawal. See

1 Rayons-Vac., 771 F.3d at 1208. Like in Rayons-Vac., Mr. Herrera-Hernandez has never 2 engaged in fraud of any kind in his attempts to enter the United States.

3 Ultimately, the Ninth Circuit concluded that five of the six enumerated factors cut
4 against the defendant's plausibility for withdrawal of application. See Rayons-Vac., 771
5 F.3d at 1208-1209. Yet the Ninth Circuit found that a single factor, humanitarian 6 considerations³, in conjunction with non-enumerated factors such as criminal history and the 7 showings as to similarly-situated defendants made his case plausible. Id.

8 It's worth looking at the two cases side-by side:

9 Factor	Rayons-Vac.	Mr. Herrera-Hernandez
10 Obvious, deliberate fraud?	No.	No.
11 History of illegal reentries	6	Unclear (2008); 12 (2009).
12 Prior finding of inadmissibility	Yes - 1.	No (2008); Yes - 1 (2009).
13 Intent to violate the law	Walked through the mountains	Walked through the POE (2008); walked through the mountains (2009)
14 Health	Good	Good
15 Age	Unclear	36 (2008); 36 (2009)
16 Pending petition for status?	No.	No.
17 Married to USC?	No.	No.
18 Family in the US?	Yes.	No.
19 Humanitarian interest?	Yes.	Yes.
20 Criminal History	Misdemeanors	None.
21 Suspected alien smuggler	Yes	No

23
24 ³The humanitarian interest in Rayons-Vac. was the compelling desire to keep families
25 united. 771 F.3d at 1208. Though Mr. Herrera-Hernandez does not have family present in 26 the United States, his motive for entering – to provide economic support for his family -- is 27 similarly compelling and related to a humanitarian and public interest. See Exhibit A at ¶8-28 10. Immigration law's recognition of employment as satisfying a humanitarian and public interest is most readily obvious in the context of employment authorization. Even aliens subject to removal may have their action deferred and apply for employment authorization
“if the alien establishes an economic necessity for employment.” 8 C.F.R. §274a.12(c)(14).

1 In Mr. Herrera-Hernandez's case, many of the factors seem to cut the same way as the 2 factors did in Rayons-Vac. However, unlike the defendant in Rayons-Vac, Mr. Herrera-
3 Hernandez had no criminal history, nor was he suspected of being an alien smuggler. He can 4 satisfy the requirements as pronounced in Rayons-Vac. to establish plausible relief.

5 4. Available cases documenting decisions by an immigration officer to grant
6 withdrawal of an application for admission demonstrates it is plausible
7 Mr. Herrera-Hernandez also could have been granted such permission.

8 Finally, the Court in Rayons-Vac. looked to a single case the defendant had provided 9 where a person with no pending petitions, a prior order of exclusion, and a serious federal 10 felony conviction for lying to a federal officer had been granted withdrawal of application.
11 Id., 771 F.3d at 1209. The Court found that this showing, while not sufficient to carry the 12 defendant's burden, made clear that even aliens with much more negative factors than his own could plausibly be granted relief. Id.

13 In line with that showing, Mr. Herrera-Hernandez proffers the following three cases:

14 (a) Exhibit F.

15 This form, granting permission to withdraw, pertains to an individual who: had felony 16 convictions, had been the subject of a prior order of exclusion, and had no petitions or 17 applications for lawful status pending at the time. See Exhibit F. The individual had been 18 convicted for the felony offense of false statement to a federal officer in violation of 18
19 U.S.C. § 1001 and sentenced to a term of imprisonment of twelve months. The individual
20 was then granted permission to withdraw his application for admission. See id. As the form 21 indicates, this individual had no petitions or applications for lawful status pending at the 22 time. Id. He also had been ordered excluded from the United States only two years prior. Id.

23 (b) Exhibit G.

24 This form, granting permission to withdraw, pertains to an individual who: had been 25 ordered removed in 1988; convicted of alien smuggling in 2007 and sentenced to twenty-one 26 months in prison, and who was encountered at the MCC San Diego following his conviction.
27 See Exhibit G. This person also had no petitions or applications for lawful status pending.
28 Id. Nonetheless, he was also permitted to withdraw his application. Id.

TIME: 2:00 p.m.

DECLARATION OF PAULINO
HERRERA-HERNANDEZ

17 DECLARATION OF PAULINO HERRERA-HERNANDEZ
18

19 I, Paulino Herrera-Hernandez, do hereby declare as follows under penalty of perjury:

20 Introduction

21 1. I am the defendant in the above-captioned case.

22 2. I was born on March 10, 1972 in Arroyo Prieto, which is in the state of 23 Guerrero, Mexico.

24 3. I attended school in Guerrero, Mexico through the first grade. I have not 25 attended any further schooling since then.

26 4. I speak Mixteco. It is the only language that I understand completely and speak 27 fluently.

28 5. I understand and speak very little Spanish.

1 18. The officer did not offer me a chance to call an attorney before I signed the
2 paperwork that he gave me.

3 19. The officer did not read the paperwork to me. If he did read the paperwork, it
4 was not in a language that I understood. I did not have a chance to read the paperwork
5 myself.

6 20. The officer told me where to sign and where to put my initials on the 7 paperwork.

8 21. I did not understand what I was signing.

9 22. The officer did not tell me I had any option other than to sign the paperwork.

10 23. If I had known that I could withdraw my application to be admitted to the 11 United States, I would have asked to do that so that I could apply to come into the United 12 States legally.

13 2009 Expedited Removal

14 24. On February 22, 2009, I was arrested by a Border Patrol agent in the hills, 15 approximately two miles east of the Otay Mesa Port of Entry and four miles north of the 16 border.

17 25. I did not show any false documents or provide false information in order to try 18 to come into the United States at that time.

19 26. I was processed at the Chula Vista Border Patrol Station, where a Border 20 Patrol agent spoke to me in a combination of Spanish and English.

21 27. In the limited Spanish that I know, I told the officer that I did not understand
22 Spanish and that I needed a Mixteco interpreter. I said to the officer, "No entiende 23 Espanol. Yo quiero Mixteco."

24 28. A Mixteco interpreter was not provided to me.

25 29. The agent did not explain to me that I was in formal removal proceedings and 26 would be ordered removed from the United States. If the agent did explain anything to 27 me, it was not in a language that I understood.

1 30. The agent did not offer me a chance to call an attorney before I signed the
2 paperwork that he gave me.

3 31. The agent did not read the paperwork to me. If he did read the paperwork, it
4 was not in a language that I understood. I did not have a chance to read the paperwork
5 myself.

6 32. The agent told me where to sign and where to put my initials on the 7 paperwork.

8 33. I did not understand what I was signing.

9 34. The agent did not tell me I had any option other than to sign the paperwork.

10 35. If I had known that I could withdraw my application to be admitted to the 11 United States, I would have asked to do that so that I could apply to come into the United 12 States legally.

Before I take your statement, I also want to explain your rights, and the purpose and consequences of this interview.

You do not appear to be admissible or to have the required legal papers authorizing your admission to the United States. This may result in your being denied admission and immediately returned to your home country without a hearing. If a decision is made to refuse your admission into the United States, you may be immediately removed from this country, and if so, you may be barred from reentry for a period of 5 years or longer.

If you lie or give misinformation, you may be subject to criminal or civil penalties, or barred from receiving immigration benefits or relief now or in the future.

Except as I will explain to you, you are not entitled to a hearing or review.

U.S. law provides protection to certain persons who face persecution, harm or torture upon return to their home country. If you fear or have a concern about being removed from the United States or about being sent home, you should tell me so during this interview because you may not have another chance. You will have the opportunity to speak privately and confidentially to another officer about your fear or concern. That officer will determine if you should remain in the United States and not be removed because of that fear.

Until a decision is reached in your case, you will remain in the custody of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

DECLARATION OF AMRUTHA N. JINDAL

18

I, Amrutha N. Jindal, do hereby declare as follows:

19 1. I was appointed to represent Paulino Herrera-Hernandez in the above-captioned
20 case on November 17, 2014.

21 2. On November 18, 2014, I sent a letter to Assistant United States Attorney Julia
22 Cline requesting an opportunity to inspect and copy the entire contents of the A-File at a 23 time mutually convenient to both parties.

24 3. Ten days later, on November 28, 2014, a fast-track plea offer and pages 1-58 of 25 discovery were sent to my office. This set of discovery included incomplete A-file 26 documents related to the 2008 expedited removal and a 2011 reinstatement.

27 4. On December 1, 2014, 7 pages of A-file discovery were produced, all of which 28

1 were repetitive of those received in the November 28, 2014 discovery set.

2 5. On December 10, 2014, defense counsel and the Assistant United States
3 Attorney corresponded about the missing discovery.

4 6. On January 14, 2015, defense counsel followed up specifically on the 5 incomplete A-file discovery.

6 7. On January 15, 2015, defense counsel filed a Motion to Compel Discovery,
7 which included a request for inspection and copying of the A-file. See Dkt. 14.

8 8. On January 16, 2015, the government produced additional A-file discovery, but 9 the additional discovery did not contain the 2009 expedited removal documents.

10 9. On January 22, 2015, the government produced 52 pages of A-file discovery, 11 which included documents related to the 2009 expedited removal.

12 10. As part of the standard fast-track offer, the government does not permit 13 viewing or inspection of the A-file. An A-file viewing is scheduled only when a case is 14 “out of” fast-track and typically when it’s assigned to an Assistant United States
15 Attorney who is not in the Grand Jury unit.

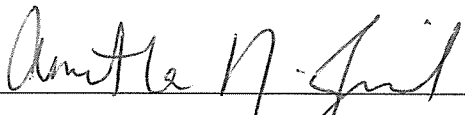

16 11. On January 22, 2015, Assistant United States attorney Benjamin Katz entered 17 his Notice of Appearance on this case. Defense counsel contacted Mr. Katz on January 18 23, 2015 to schedule an A-file viewing. The earliest mutually agreeable date to have the 19 A-file viewing was on January 29, 2015.

20 12. Defense counsel viewed the A-file at the United States Attorney’s Office on 21 January 29, 2015, the same date as the Motion Hearing. As explained at the Motion
22 Hearing, this was the first time defense counsel had the opportunity to inspect the A-file.

23 13. On January 30, 2015, the remaining A-file discovery requested from the A-file 24 viewing was produced.

25 14. Once having all of the necessary A-file documents, time was needed to 26 research and draft the motion to dismiss. Additionally, because Mr. Herrera-Hernandez 27 is a Mixteco speaker, additional coordination of outside interpretive services was 28 required to prepare his Declaration.
